Details on your candidature

I am an internationally known academic leader in the fields of Anesthesia and Critical Care Medicine as well as an experienced and accomplished academic administrator. The major focus of my clinical and research career has been the early identification and prevention of organ failure in critically ill patients in both the intensive care unit and the operating room. While pursuing my academic career I have also held progressively larger administrative roles culminating in my appointment in 2014 as Chair of the Department of Anesthesia, Critical Care and Pain Medicine at Beth Israel deaconess Medical Center.

Throughout my career I have built collaborations across borders. I have been a member of ESICM for over 20 years and have been active in the society, regularly attending the annual meeting. In addition, I served on the editorial board of ICM for 5 years.

As North American Liaison to ESICM, I hope to represent the interests of North American members of the Society and at the same time, raise the profile of the society among North American physicians. .
