Details on your candidature

Dear colleagues,

It is a great honor for me to present my candidature for the position of National Representative of Spain within the ESICM Council. Over the past years, I have been deeply engaged with the Society and with our national community, and I am motivated to continue serving by strengthening the link between both.

Since 2020, I have been an active member of the NEXT Committee, where I have had the privilege of collaborating on initiatives that aim to bring value to members at different stages of their careers. Together with colleagues, I contributed to the creation of visual abstracts, the launch of the first Clinical Case Contest and book, the development of the Mentoring Program, and several educational activities such as the General Intensive Care Ultrasound course and the Intensive Care Nephrology pathway. I have also been involved with the Social Media and Digital Content Committee, the ICMx journal, and the Methodology Group, which has broadened my understanding of how the Society operates across its various committees and activities. These experiences have taught me the importance of teamwork, transparency, and innovation in advancing the mission of ESICM. In Spain, I am actively engaged with our national society, SEMICYUC, through different working groups, contributing to scientific and educational projects such as CIMIR-2, CAMIR-4, and upcoming national courses. This involvement has allowed me to stay closely connected to the needs and perspectives of our intensivist community at the national level.

If elected as National Representative, my priorities would be:

1. To strengthen communication and collaboration between ESICM and SEMICYUC, ensuring alignment in educational and scientific initiatives.
2. To promote ESICM's opportunities in Spain, encouraging greater participation of young intensivists in committees, educational programs, and research networks.
3. To facilitate equitable access to training and leadership opportunities, so that colleagues from different regions and backgrounds can benefit equally from what our Society offers.
4. To represent Spanish intensivists with responsibility, transparency, and respect, ensuring that their voice is clearly heard within the Council.

I strongly believe that the National Representative should act as a true bridge — listening to the concerns of members, promoting their active participation, and ensuring that our Society remains inclusive and forward-looking. With my background in ESICM and SEMICYUC, and with the values I uphold, I am committed to fulfilling this role with dedication and enthusiasm.

Thank you for considering my candidature.

Sincerely,

David Pérez-Torres
