Details on your candidature

Education and Clinical Experience:

I am a physician graduated from the Faculty of Medicine of Bahia, Federal University of Bahia (UFBA), in 1999. I am a specialist in Intensive Care Medicine, certified by the Brazilian Association of Intensive Care Medicine (AMIB). I have been actively involved in medical education for over 20 years, specializing in internal medicine and intensive care. My focus has been on training residents in critical care, contributing significantly to their professional development.

I serve as a Permanent Professor in the Postgraduate Program in Medicine and Health (PPgMS) and an Adjunct Professor in the Department of Internal Medicine at FMB, UFBA. Furthermore, I coordinate the Intensive Care Medicine Residency and the Intensive Care Specialization Program at Hospital da Cidade – Salvador, and I am the Coordinator of the ICU at Hospital da Mulher, Salvador, Bahia, Brazil

Research and Publications:

I lead a research group dedicated to critical care, with a particular emphasis on delirium, sedation, and the impact of using patient diaries in critically ill patients. Our work in these areas has resulted in numerous publications, including contributions to major journals in the field.

This year, I began a post-doctoral research project titled "Shakespearean Theater and the Intensive Care Unit: Emulations of Psychological Dramas."

Interests and Contributions:

I have actively participated in many ways with the Brazilian Association of Intensive Care Medicine (AMIB), organizing events such as the National Congress of Critical Care (CBMI), and serving on various commissions and committees. My primary interest lies in increasing the visibility of critical care in Brazil and throughout South America. I am committed to collaborating with the European Society of Intensive Care Medicine (ESICM) in any necessary capacity to promote intensive care practices and encourage more individuals to become associated with the society.
