Details on your candidature

I applied for this position because I could personally strengthen the relationship between the European Society of Intensive Care Medicine and the members of Hungarian Society of Anesthesiology and Intensive Care Medicine. In my home country, I work at the largest intensive care department in Hungary at Semmelweis University.

My main task is to manage undergraduate and postgraduate intensive care training for trainees. I also continuously organize conferences and courses for specialists.

I have been actively involved in the scientific work of ESICM since 2010, and I participated in the ETHICUS 2, Disproprius, Disproprius Family, and FENICE 2 studies as a national coordinator.

In my opinion, science is international, and it is our duty to showcase our scientific achievements in order to improve both the chances of recovery for patients and the professional development of our colleagues in intensive care. I consider, it important to share the scientific findings of the European Society of Intensive Care Medicine with Hungarian intensive care physicians and to encourage as many Hungarian participants as possible to attend the scientific programs organized by ESICM.

I am actively involved in scientific life, and this year I personally participated in two projects organized by ESICM, namely the Fenice 2 and PEGASUS studies. I will not go into detail about my earlier research, but I will share my scientific identifiers. Scopus ID: 24358043600, Orcid ID: 0000-0003-0583-3290

In my opinion, if elected, I will be able to perform the tasks described in the job description. I would like to contribute personally to this difficult but very honorable task.
